JAMES AND HIS DRIFTERS... BRING A SPUNK AND VITALITY TO A STYLE OF MUSIC THAT BENEFITS GREATLY FROM IT.

-JOHN HUBNER, MUSIC EDITOR, WHATZUP MAGAZINE, FT. WAYNE, IN

James and the Drifters is an alt. folk rock/indie band from Ft. Wayne, Indiana. In their fourth release-to-date, James and the Drifters, collect their folk upbringing and golden-era of rock influences to playfully dance and solemnly dirge into the deep questions of existence. "All That Gold" is a collage of songs about wandering in search of purpose and salvation, and about finding a sense of place in community with others.

All That Gold, was produced by Peter Fox at Stone House Recording (Lucas Wilson, Bennett, Under the Sun) and mastered by Emily Lazar at The Lodge (The Shins, John Mayer, Vampire Weekend), is set to release AUGUST 5, 2014.

BIOGRAPHY: James & the Drifters formed in 2010 when three friends decided to combine efforts and record their original folk songs as one group. Now with three albums under their belts, the band has wandered out beyond its folk tendencies to explore the indie rock waves. The group performs over 100 events/year all over the Midwest. Their dynamic live show is infused with passion and playfulness. An aura of positivity surrounds their live shows- enveloping the audience into a hopeful trust fall of togetherness. James and the Drifter's sound has been compared to Kings of Leon, My Morning Jacket, Band of Horses, and Coldplay.

PERFORMANCE HIGHLIGHTS: The Vogue (Indianapolis), The Pyramid Scheme (Grand Rapids), Rockettown (Nashville), Goose Island (Chicago), The Empty Bottle (Chicago), Brothers Drake (Columbus), The Fat & Skinny Tire Festival (Lake Winona), and performed for a sold out audience of 2,000 at the Ft Wayne Zoo Brew.
